A short biography

It was late spring in Tehran when Farah Notash was born to a middle-class family of Azeri origin.

Gradually, after the tragedy of her young mother dying when she was only two and a half, she started playing with the soil in their little garden and making objects. Later she started drawing, singing and dancing.

Waves of political storms engulfed the life of the family. Anxieties and sorrow for political prisoners among her closest relatives filled many years of her childhood. Besides, her family's properties were plundered following the 1953 coup in Iran, causing severe financial hardship and plunging the family into deep poverty. From then on, she gained bitter experience and knowledge of certain facts which have remained with her until the present time.

During elementary school and later in high school, she felt a remarkable attraction towards art and her talent was already recognized in her outstanding work. After completing high school in Tehran, she studied in European academies and developed her skills in a wide range of art forms.

The use of different materials, experimenting with varying styles, as well as changing from one art form to another, occurs to her naturally. She is the artist of research and collection. The particular emotional and aesthetical needs will determine the best choice to express the subject in an optimal way. She uses symbols, shades or fine lines, soft or hard motives, harmonizing or contrasting colours to portray the depth of social problems. Clay, wood, bronze, chalk or stone are most valuable to her in sculptures; oil, acrylic and water colours are used in her paintings; while other pieces of art are created with transparent or opaque colours or glossy ceramic objects, as well as mirrors or any other material.

Her art ranges from realism to modern, avant-garde with social motives. The study of world mysticism throughout history, alongside that of philosophical socialism, has influenced her life and art. She is a multitalented borderless artist, sensitive and aware of social problems and movements in the world. Composing poems in the Persian, English and Azeri languages, as well as singing them, is a means of true emotional communication, a manifestation of her need to express herself.

She believes art to be a path to the hearts, a way of living with true expanding of love, a dynamic challenge of living and dying for changing the world to the benefit of all.

Die of love

There is no limit...
and border...for love
and never an end
for the way from where...
have I joined the way?
and till...where
will I stay...with the way?
the absurd rush... regardless suddenly starts...to grow in me when I stop going and I get lost in the barren ... of nothingness
I...must stay with the way... and going
I ...must die
of love and going

Women´s Sorrow

The earth has been shown in two vertical and horizontal hemispheres, and in two days.

A: The sunset of the patriarch (as past and today)

B: The sunrise of Space age.

It starts from the patriarch age in the world, in a movement like this:

1- Beginning with the slavery epoch in Egypt. For building the kheops pyramid. the daughter of Kheops, from age of 18, was in service of all Egyptian men for 55 years, to obtain stones and jewels for build the Kheops pyramid. She is painted sitting sadly, and in the style of Egyptian paintings, inside a glass pyramid. Close to her an expression of men and stones in the Jeyzeh desert.

2- Below No (1) an ancient king is painted being buried with his living wives (according to an ancient custom in different parts of the world).

3- On the left as the arc law of king Hammurabi of Babylonia, a woman being thrown down in to a river from a tower, with a rock tied to her feet.

4- Below No (3) a woman is being stoned to death by Jewish people of old times.

5- Below No (4), Arabs burying a woman and female child alive and beheading a woman.

6- On the slope of Golgotha (Hill), an Indian woman is being burnt alive with the corpse of her husband.

7- Below No (6) a Chinese woman was forced to commit suicide in order to show her loyalty to her dead husband.

8- On the right slope of Golgotha, some tortured and putting to death of Christian women in the Middle Ages in Europe by the Catholic Church is shown.

9- Above No (8) Persian King Naseredin Shah is shown with his wives in his harm, the Mirrors showing other women in all the country which he could possess. At the same time in Persia if a woman was not loyal to her husband, her hair was shaved and she had to sit backward on a horse or a donkey and was disgraced in her town.

10- The age of Industry, woman is squashed under the wheels of industrial cart.

The cowboy is galloping towards darkness, and in a closed circle to the new slavery age, while carrying in his hand advertising balloons with pictures of laughing happy women.

In the bottom left hand corner of the picture, the Patriarch is sitting as stone, his anxious face is towards the sunset. He has in his hand a sheet of paper with slavery rules. The line of his sight reaches the beheaded Victory of Samothrace. This sculpture is chosen as a symbol for the patriarch's tragic acts on women. Many women protest to the cowboy´s acts and join the international worldwide march. They walk round the Colosseum of Rome to come up the dreadful Valley of history, they have the shadow of the Colosseum on their heads. A symbol of running slavery laws against women.

The first women in the clothes of Persian carpet weavers, is holding a level balance, demanding human equality. The form of white her scarf is similar to the wings of victory of Samothrace. The shape of her body is alike to the Samothrace too. The difference is that Samothrace is stepping down from the sky, but the woman is stepping up from the valley to the space age.

But this time she has a head and arms!
The little boy on the left side of the woman, shows his allegiance to the women's right, by raising his left hand. The black woman, hand in hand with the first women has the expression of Angela Davis, with the cry for equality of races.
Behind them the woman in red, with the expression of Irish Bernadette Devlin, is with the cry, for equality of nations. Following them are women from all over the world. The woman in black resembles Arab women.
Children are painted in this world-wide march, to show that is the role of women to educate them to respect the equality of human rights.
The historical research of women's dreadful life in whole the world, their slavery, suppression, and double exploitation, is a constant deepening sad story which cannot be expressed on one picture even though so large

Concise explanation

This painting consists of three main sections.

Part 1, massacre

Part 2, Sunny perseverance

Part 3, Blockade

1-Massacre by different weapons. Rain of death, explosion of phosphorus bombs, attacks by land forces. Robot like infantry, all drowned in darkness. Although the soldier has raised the finger of the bloody hand for victory, is carrying a flag with the sign of death, supported by USA flag behind, which also bears the sign of death.
A big wave of blood, with a child head in centre.

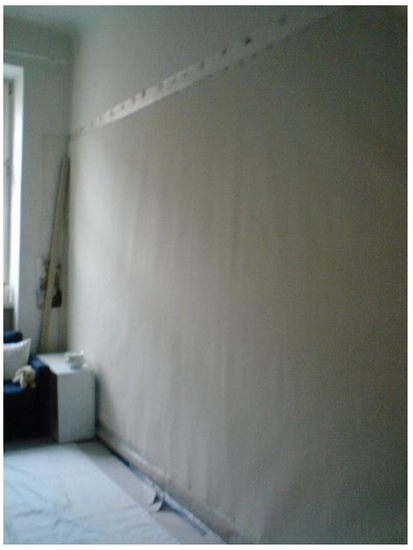

2-Sun is symbol of an eternal Victory,
Perseverance and constancy for the human rights.
Palestinian man has the wounded son on his arms. Walking in blood
With his Palestinian scarf resembles his nation. Although attacked from all the sides, but is eternally victorious for perseverance.

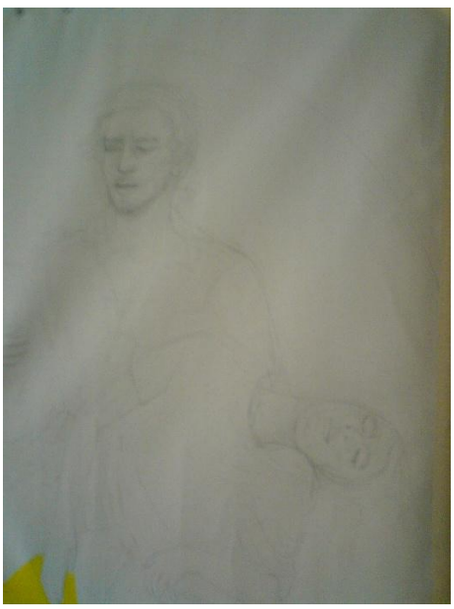

His face showing pure innocence and all the questions of the nation,
But why?
Why aren't they allowed to live in their own land?
Perhaps one would ask why did not I choose a woman instead?
Because this kind of carrying is characterized in Gaza massacre. As men were wounded too.

3-Blockade, prison, wall, barbed wire, bulldozer and the Gaza woman aiming to stop the …but always is the victim. The black map of Palestine and the children who are running through the blood with their flags on their hearts, are the hopes of tomorrow.
Although this painting may be the largest painting of art history in defending a nation, but very small in comparison with the misery imposed on Palestinians in the past one century

Arabic spring collection
Vienna 2011

The large collection of the abstract expressionist paintings of 2011, is reflection of the Arabic Spring Revolutions for freedom in many Arabic countries.
They did not succeed to have freedom or people's ruling system anywhere.
These paintings are resembling not clear situation of that unclear revolutions. And just few of them are published in this book.

War and Syrian children

Vienna 2013-14

During the war in Syria, the children had experienced the most bitter life one can ever imagine. As refugees in Turkey, or when they had lost their parents in war, or when they were stolen in Syria for different kind of missuses.

Beautiful Onion - 12x20cm

Her art ranges from realism to modern, avant-garde with social motives. The study of world mysticism throughout history, alongside that of philosophical socialism, has influenced her life and art. She is a multitalented borderless artist, sensitive and aware of social problems and movements in the world. Composing poems in the Persian, English and Azeri languages, as well as singing them, is a means of true emotional communication, a manifestation of her need to express herself.
